1	Ran out of handouts. Even though they offered to email them to participants later, this should not happen at a conference of this caliber!
2	I was most impressed with the presenters from Starfish, outside Detroit, who've outsourced their entire fiscal operation & are having great success w that arrangement. Theirs is a back-from-the-brink success story in which new leadership respected org culture while implmenting sorely needed change. Very interesting story. would suggest they (& others who've done the same) talk more about successful outsourcing of $ and HR functions, also about honoring corporate culture while doing so. In these times of downsizing & turnover, the latter is especially valuable to learn more about.
3	Unfortunately 1/2 of the copies of the PowerPoint were lost.
4	This session provided helpful information on evaluating the specific needs of your program.
5	Well presented
6	Telling their stories is a powerful way to share experiences and knowledge. All presenters did a good job. They presented the information in teams of 2 or 3 people from each organization.
